Press Release

First European Lighting Summit receives big applause

LightingEurope received very positive feedback for the first European Lighting Summit, held on 30 March in Brussels. The event attracted 140 participants representing the lighting industry, EU institutions and related stakeholder organisations.

Feedback from the event evaluation survey shows attendees found the event was an excellent opportunity to network with the industry and to learn more about EU policies and how they impact the industry. Attendees also expressed their great satisfaction with the selection of topics, the diversity of speakers and the organization.

The event showcased the key pillars of LightingEurope's Strategic Roadmap 2025 with their challenges and opportunities: Intelligent Lighting Systems, Human Centric Lighting and Circular Economy. From visionary thoughts on the "digital tsunami" that will hit the industry and the business opportunities it creates for lighting systems, to medical research with lighting and EU insights to the objectives of the Circular Economy and the upcoming review of CE marking rules, the agenda offered a unique range of perspectives.

The presentations are available on the new LightingEurope website for download.

LightingEurope would like to thank the speakers and audience for their contribution to making the first European Lighting Summit a success.
